6. Cookies and Other Technologies. Like many Third Party Websites (as defined below), our Website may use “cookies” or “other technologies” (such as “pixel tags”, “web beacons”, “clear GIFs”, links in emails, JavaScript, device IDs, or similar technologies) to collect information and support certain features of our Website. Cookies and other technologies allow us and third parties to obtain information about your visits to our Services, including analyzing your visiting patterns. Although you are not required to accept cookies when you visit our Website, you may be unable to use all of the functionality of our Website if your browser restricts our cookies. We may use this information to process your requests and to deliver online advertisements, messages and content from us and others that are specific to your interests. The information we collect from your web browser and from cookies and other technologies does not identify you personally, but in some cases, we may link it to personally identifiable information.

6.1 Cookies. Below, we explain the different types of cookies that may be used on the Website.

6.1.1 Necessary Cookies. Necessary cookies are required to enable the basic features of the Website, such as adjusting your consent preferences. These cookies do not store any Personal Data.

6.1.2 Functional Cookies. Functional cookies are used to enhance the Website's performance and functionality. Without them, certain functions of the Website may not be available. They are used to remember your preferences and settings to enhance your Website browsing experience.

6.1.3 Performance Cookies. Session cookies allow us to count visits and traffic sources so we can measure and improve the performance of our site. If you do not allow these cookies we will not know when you have visited our Website, and will not be able to monitor its performance.

6.1.4 Analytics Cookies. Analytics cookies help collect information about your use of our Services and enable us to improve the way it works. These cookies give us aggregated information that we use to monitor site performance, count page visits, spot technical errors, see how users reach the Services, and measure the effectiveness of marketing (including emails).

6.1.5 Marketing Cookies. Marketing cookies are used to measure the performance of our advertising campaigns and to help us optimize our advertising resources. Unlike targeting cookies that build detailed user profiles, the marketing cookies which we employ, for example, marketing cookies provided by Google Ads and LinkedIn Ads, are not used to track you across unrelated websites or to create personal behavioral profiles. Instead, these Marketing Cookies allow us to understand whether our ads are effective, how often they are clicked, and which campaigns generate results. The information is used solely for internal measurement and advertising/marketing campaign optimization purposes.

6.2 Your Rights to Opt-out of Cookies. When you visit our Website, you are given the choice to manage your cookie preferences through the cookie consent banner displayed on the footer of the Website. This banner allows you to:

- (i) Accept all cookies, including necessary, functional, performance, and marketing cookies; or
- (ii) Customize your preferences, so that you can choose which categories of cookies you allow (for example, enabling functional, and performance cookies, while rejecting marketing cookies). Please note that if you opt out of certain cookies, some features of the Website may not function as intended.

6.3 Other Technologies. In addition to Cookies, we may use other similar technologies, like pixel tags (also known as web beacons and clear GIFs), to, among other things, track the actions of users of the Services (about usage and including email recipients), measure the success of our marketing campaigns, and compile statistics of the Website and response rates.
